

Doraiswamy Varadachar

December 15, 2022

Varadachar, Doraiswamy on December 15, 2022. Beloved husband of Miyoko who preceded him in death. Beba, as he was known to his friends, was a quiet soul to those who didn't get to know him, but to others he was a font of interesting life experiences and knowledge. God speed Beba.

“ Beba was a wise and surprising man who became a dear friend in my graduate school years at Penn. He was bright , kind and loving. I am happy he found his one true love. The memories of him are a blessing. ”

“ Mr. B, AKA Beba, I will miss him. He would visit the office to say hello and bring a fatty treat. He would always ask me about my family and make sure my wife knew he said hello. I was always happy to see him, and I will keep him in my heart and mind always. ”

“ When I first came to CityView, Beba had just lost Miyoko, the love of his life, and I had never met a person as sad as Beba was. It broke my heart, but it made me love him even more. Over the next 8 years, it was always such a joy to have him come into the office at CityView. He was such a special person and such a knowledgeable person. Conversations with Beba were amazing and what he knew left me stunned (and sometime googling). His dry sense of humor, sometimes left me in stitches and sometime wondering. He always put other people in front of his wants and needs and when we tried to help him, he would resist. It saddens me that we were not there for him more, especially these last few weeks. I miss him and hope that he is now in a happy place with his beloved Miyoko.

“ Beba was a very special person. I am glad to have the pleasure of being able to call him a friend for the past 9 years. He was a brilliant man who could talk to anyone about almost any topic that you could imagine. He was genuinely funny and charming. I will miss him terribly, but my life is so much richer for knowing him.
